CONSULTING INDUCTION PROGRAM

TRAINING SESSIONS

Bridges for Enterprise, in collaboration with its several other global chapters, conducted a series of training sessions for its newly inducted members in the months of February and March.

These training sessions were conducted under the consulting induction program which is aimed at sharpening and honing the skills of young, newly admitted members. The topics covered under the sessions were of wide variety and comprised different domains. The aim of the sessions was to inculcate the required prerequisite skill set required for a professional consultant.

The topics of the sessions included but were not limited to slide designing, introduction to stock market, time value of money, research methodology and cracking case competitions.

The sessions were taken at regular intervals by the senior consulting associates of Bridges for Enterprise.

The sessions were very beneficial for students in their first year who plan to take up consulting as their future career.
